FRAZIER CREEK ANNEXATION SURVEY WILL BEGIN DESPITE OPPOSITION

STRATHMORE — Opposition to existing boundary lines of the Frazier Creek Watershed annexation to the El Mirador Soil Conservation district was expressed Tuesday at a Strathmore Chamber of Commerce meeting by John Guthrie of Porterville, who stated that he represents the opinion of property owners south of the Lower Tule Irrigation District canal who are included in the annexation.

Guthrie charged that the boundary lines are "ridiculous" and "grossly unfair" to persons already being served by the Porterville Irrigation district, because they would receive no benefit from the Frazier Creek annexation. He said he fears the annexation will go beyond the point of being simply a U.S. watershed survey, as proposed, and will develop into a source of revenue for those benefitting from any eventual flood control program.

The bulk of his remarks were directed at Consultant-Engineer Chuck Morris, Tulare county representative of the U.S. Soil Conservation service. Morris contended that the annexation means only that a survey of the watershed will be undertaken by the federal government, and that recommendations for flood control methods will be made as a result of the survey.

Morris said three possible flood control projects have been tentatively developed, and that property owners would have the opportunity to adopt "whatever project is economically feasible." He said if persons opposed to the annexation could muster a two-thirds vote they could be excluded from the annexation.

Protesting landowners failed to annul the annexation in a recent El Mirador Soil Conservation district board hearing. Registered protests fell considerably short of the required 25 percent.

EMSCD board members initially considered holding an election before adopting the annexation "in the face of strenuous opposition," but last week decided to proceed with the annexation.

Elimination Of Check Forgery

PORTERVILLE — A method purporting to eliminate bad check passing and forgery of contracts and documents will be introduced to Porterville businessmen Monday, September 20 at the Merchants Committee meeting starting at 12:00 noon in the Paul Bunyan restaurant.

Called Identiseal, the process will be explained by Robert Gilmore of Los Angeles. Identiseal utilizes either a finger printing technique or a positive identification process, and is recommended by L.A., Palm Springs, and Porterville Police departments.

Reservations may be made by calling the Chamber of Commerce office at 784-7502.

Porterville-area football fans will get their first view of home teams in action this weekend as the Porterville College Pirates meet state champion College of Sequoia Giants Saturday night, and the Monache High Marauders

NUCLEAR PLANT MEETING SET

LINDSAY — Facts concerning the proposed nuclear power plant to be located north of Porterville will be presented by representatives of the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power on Tuesday, September 21 starting at 7:30 p.m. in the Lindsay Memorial building.

BUCK SHAFFER, PANTHER BAND, WESTERN GROUP TO DO HALF-TIME SHOW RAM-49ER FOOTBALL GAME

PORTERVILLE — Porterville will be on parade in front of the nation, via television, when Buck Shaffer, with the Porterville High School Panther band, and a contingent of western vehicles and characters, stages the half-time show for the Los Angeles Ram - San Francisco 49er football game in the Los Angeles Coliseum, Sunday afternoon, November 21.

The show, now being written, will be produced by John T. Boudreau, who is in charge of half-time entertainment for the Rams and who also directs the Ram band, actual director of the show will be Shaffer.

Title of the show is "Gold Fever," with the production to be aired on national television. Since the Ram-49er game is traditionally the professional football highlight on the Pacific coast, television will also go into areas outside the United States.

As visualized at present, the Panther band will present a musical tribute to the West; adding color will be a parade of wagons, riders, gold miners, pioneers, and horseless carriages moving down both sides of the Coliseum field while the band does its routine.

This western equipment, including Doc Small's Medicine show, will be assembled in Porterville and transported to the Coliseum.

Assisting Shaffer at present - and a lot more help will be needed - are Bob Bennett, Loren Schmid, Bill Rodgers, and Don Jones.

Shaffer, Bennett, Schmid and Rodgers have met twice with Boudreau to discuss the show, and were in Los Angeles last Thursday for the pre-season Ram-49er game to get an idea of the layout of the Coliseum.

Official approval for Panther band participation in the show was granted by members of the high school board of trustees Monday night.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

ANOTHER BIG ONE FOR PORTERVILLE BUT COMMUNITY HELP IS NEEDED

So, Porterville has taken on the impossible - the staging of a western spectacular as a half-time show for the L.A. Ram-S.F. 49er football game in the Los Angeles Coliseum, November 21.

We say, "the impossible," because that's what it would be for any other community we can think of - but in Porterville "impossibles" of this kind only take a little longer than immediately.

SHERIFF BOB WILEY WILL RIDE AS HOMECOMING PARADE GRAND MARSHAL

PORTERVILLE — Tulare County Sheriff Bob Wiley will ride as Grand Marshal of the Veterans Day and Homecoming parade on October 25, it was announced Tuesday evening at the regular weekly meeting of the Veterans Homecoming committee.

Wiley, a former championship professional calf roper and former Porterville college football star, lived in Porterville during his first term as sheriff but is residing in Visalia for his second term. He will ride at the head of the parade this year, the first time a Grand Marshal has done this for several years.

In other action, the committee announced that a Veterans Day queen will be chosen Saturday, October 9 in the Memorial auditorium, and will reign as Miss Porterville for the remainder of the year. Davalyn Chamberlain is the currently reigning Miss Porterville, and will ride in the Dairy Festival parade on September 21 for the Tulare County fair opening, and also on October 9 in the Delano Harvest Festival parade.

Queen contestants, to be selected from Porterville and Monache high schools, will have access to rules and applications this week according to Queen Chairman Ialene Flory. Each contestant will be sponsored by a local service club.

Next meeting of the committee will be Monday, September 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the American Legion hall. All interested persons are invited to attend.

School Panther band. Of course there is no doubt about Buck and the band coming up with a great one - in front of some 70,000 people and on national television.

But along with the band, in a show presented as a musical tribute to the West and titled, "Gold Fever," goes a parade or a pageant of the west, in fact two parades, since lines of old-time vehicles and characters will move simultaneously down each side of the Coliseum football field to complement the band show.

To do all this, it will be necessary to get together wagons, buggies, teams, riders, horseless carriages; western characters portraying miners, Indians, trappers, mountain men, dudes, sod busters; also prop builders and stage artists; and truck transportation to move Porterville's "calvalcade of the west" into the Los Angeles coliseum.

Now, a lot of help is needed - is essential, in fact - help in the form of money, western equipment, teams, actors - help that we visualize coming from service clubs, civic organizations, the chamber of commerce, individuals, and business firms.

There will be publicity soon on just how and where this help will be organized and utilized.

But come what may, Buck is booked. The show goes on. And Porterville parades in front of the nation come November 21.

Nation's Economy Is Major Concern In Opinion Poll

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Results of an opinion poll conducted by Congressman Bob Mathias during June and July show that the state of the Nation's economy ranks as the number one concern of the people of the 18th Congressional district.

Nearly 20,000 Tulare and Kern county residents responded to the questionnaire, which asked for opinions on state and national issues.

Other opinion trends indicated by returned questionnaires are: a favorable reaction to returning a percentage of Federal income taxes to state and local governments; 43 percent favoring guaranteed Federal payment of $2,400 per year to families of four below a certain income level; 94 percent favoring mandatory employment for welfare recipients physically capable of accepting employment; 58 percent favoring that the Federal government take over cost and administration of adult welfare programs; 62 percent favoring creation of public service jobs for welfare recipients; and eight percent favoring students and strikers use of food stamps.

Miss Villa is called "The Queen of Mexican Singers," with an unusual and beautiful voice that "laughs and cries" as she sings.

Rated as "the nation's best," Mariachi Mexico is composed of accomplished instrumental musicians who also sing and appear in solo presentations.

TOP PROFESSIONAL ENTERTAINERS WILL HIGHLIGHT PROGRAM

TULARE — Professional vaudeville, presented without charge twice daily in Elliott auditorium on September 23, 24, and 25, will be a highlight of Tulare County's 1971 Golden Jubilee fair, that will open September 21 for a run through six days and nights.

Singing star of the show will be Ike Cole, brother of the late great Nat. King Cole, an entertainer and recording artist in his own right, who hit stardom with his first album, "Ike Cole's Tribute To His Brother Nat."

He has appeared in night spots throughout the world, in motion pictures, and in top television shows, playing the piano and singing in a style somewhat reminiscent of his brother, but at the same time exuding a unique and personal warmth, charm and tenderness in his musical interpretations.

With him will be Jay Price, whose parents were a song and dance team in the old days of vaudeville and who grew up in show business. He is a great entertainer in the true meaning of the word, singing, dancing, doing impressions in song and monologues, creating his own skits, and playing the trombone.

Listed among his credits are appearances in the "Jackie Gleason Show," the "Arthur Godfrey Show," and the original "Dick Clark Show." He has been headlined in his own show in Las Vegas and has entertained throughout America and the Orient.

Bringing her own brand of humor to the Elliott auditorium stage will be Jenie Jackson, billed as the "Hottest of the Red Hot Mamas." And at 303 pounds, standing six feet tall, boasting a bust of 58 inches, and a "temperature of 212 degrees," she is in reality a colossal singer and comedienne.

Rounding out the vaudeville program will be a virtual show within a show - Alexander's Rag Time Band, composed of Musicians, dancers, glamorous gals, and comedians who present an entire review that is classed as "the most in music" and "the

OUR TOWN

By Ruth Loyd

Dear Willie;

It seems to me that since you opened your big mouth, in your big paper, and made the comment about finally giving me a Christmas present, the least you could do is give me a Christmas present. Where is this Christmas in August? Yeah, I know. You meant NEXT AUGUST! That figures. Now how do you expect to be a big county official, when you don't even keep your promise to your favorite columnist. Don Hillman, are you listening?

I didn't know so many people got up so early in the morning. When on our bicycle ride around OUR TOWN about six in the morning, lots of people are up and around. William Propp and Harold McVicker are eating breakfast at Stan's about this time. Clyde Hammond eats his breakfast at the corner of Main and Putnam. The garbage collectors and the street sweepers and the men who work at the golf course are all up and busy. The news boys have made their rounds. You can smell the good smell of coffee and bacon when you go by certain houses. One lady is sitting on the edge of her bed and waves rather vaguely in my direction. Some times we take a different route. We go out Plano and check on the building of a beautiful new home going up on the corner of Plano and Grand. Riding around OUR country roads just before the sun comes up is lovely.

I have come to the conclusion that Calvin Weisenberger can do anything! He not only is a delightful Santa Claus to the shut ins of OUR TOWN, he is the greatest when it comes to helping do things one's husband was supposed to do. He works so fast and does everything so well. I'm impressed.

I didn't know that George

Kralowec could cook? The men at the duck club look forward to George's turn at cooking. Max Young belongs to the same club, I don't know if he cooks, but he has beautiful dogs that run around and pick up the ducks hiding in the fields. My spy told me lots of happy stories about the duck club, but I can't print them. I don't want those two to get mad at me. I have enough trouble.

I hope Claude Letsinger can spray my liquid amber before the caterpillars ruin it. I want a few leaves left on when it turns it's beautiful fall colors.

Lots of people of OUR TOWN are starting out on fabulous trips. Africa, Alaska, Europe, and cruising around the Caribbean, and going down to Mexico. The young people are back from their trips and are in school. Now the older people are starting out. Not so many tourists at this time of year.

Happiness is cool weather, for goodness sakes.

President Nixon recently reported that output per manhour in agriculture has increased 300% in the last 20 years.

Columbus brought the first dairy cows to the Americas on his second trip to the western hemisphere in 1493.

HYPNOTIST WILL HIGHLIGHT FREE
EVENING PROGRAM

TULARE - Dr. Michael Dean, hypnotist and showman of world renown, will highlight a free entertainment program during the first two evenings of Tulare County's Golden Jubilee fair that will run September 21 through 26.

Actually a doctor of philosophy with degrees from Northwestern, Columbia, and Minnesota Universities, Dr. Dean turns his knowledge of hypnotism into one of the most entertaining acts in show business, working with volunteers from the audience.

Utilizing a Mephistophelean voice and a dominant personality, he takes total control of his volunteer assistants through hypnotism and has then dancing, singing, answering questions, doing bumps and grinds, and registering a gamut of emotions.

After their performance, Dr. Dean returns his subjects to normal, proving that hypnosis is a true and factual human state.

Dr. Dean will be making his fourth appearance at a Tulare County fair, returning this year because of the tremendous audience response accorded him in the past.

His free show, in front of the fair's grandstand, will get underway at 8:00 p.m. on Tuesday and Wednesday nights, September 21 and 22.

CHARACTERISTICS OF rattlesnake weed that are making this former orchard pest a beneficial ground cover in non-cultivated, hillside groves, are indicated in above photos, from left: Heavy growth that virtually eliminates problems of erosion and mud in moving sprinklers; deep-growing root system that binds the soil during winter months when the perennial rattlesnake weed dies back; and a soil-holding rattlesnake weed mat along a water runoff ditch.

RATTLESNAKE WEED CHANGES FROM PEST IN ORCHARDS TO BENEFICIAL GROUND COVER UNDER NON-CULTIVATION

PORTERVILLE — Rattlesnake weed, commonly classed as a hard-to-control pest, is now being used by Bill

Richardson, Worth-district citrus grower, as a ground cover to control erosion on non-cultivated, sprinkler-irrigated hillside orchards.

In one block of young citrus, Richardson fought the weed for four years with oil spray and simazine, then decided to try to put it to use as a ground cover.

Working with Fred Reeder, manager of the Porterville Citrus association, he developed what might be called "rattlesnake weed culture," and after six years of field experience believes the weed offers a cheap and efficient tool for erosion control.

"We worked along the lines of the old theory that if you can't beat 'em, join 'em," Richardson says. "We weren't making much headway in eliminating rattlesnake weed, so we decided to try to make it work for us."

Technically designated at EUPHOBIA ALBOMARGINATA, rattlesnake weed is found growing naturally in citrus areas of the San Joaquin valley. It is a deep-rooted perennial that produces a low-growing, thick ground cover in the summer, then dies down in the winter, however its roots stay alive and tend to bind the soil during the winter.

Richardson has found a number of advantages resulting from "cultivation" of rattlesnake weed.

Its summer growth virtually eliminates erosion from sprinkler irrigation and its root system cuts down erosion in the winter; on adobe soil the problem of dragging sprinklers and lines, also of walking in mud, is eliminated; the weed acts as a temperature regulator since its green mat-like growth in the summer tends to cool the orchard, while die-back in winter leaves bare ground that tends to absorb heat; and since rattlesnake weed is native to the area, there is little expense involved in putting it to beneficial use.

In connection with rattlesnake weed "cultural practices," Richardson says, "We still do some spot spraying with oil and simazine to control other weeds."

Problem of erosion control in orchards began to develop in Tulare county during the 1950s and 1960s when several thousand acres of rolling hillside land was planted in citrus and placed under sprinkler irrigation.

In a paper to be published soon on "Ground Covers In Citrus Orchards," John E. Pehrson, Tulare County Farm advisor, discusses approaches to solution of the problem, mentioning mulching of orchards, planting of various types of ground covers, and redesigning sprinkler systems, all of which have advantages and disadvantages and are relatively expensive.

Concerning utilization of rattlesnake weed for ground cover, Pehrson says, in part, "One of the most suitable plants for ground cover in citrus orchards already exists as a weed. The low-growing spurges fulfill many of the requirements of a plant cover for groves."

"Three species frequently found naturally occurring in San Joaquin Valley citrus areas are prostrate spotted spurge (Euphorbia supine), rattlesnake weed (Euphorbia albomarginata), and valley spurge (Euphorbia ocellata)."

"These plants grow low enough so that mowing is not required. They are all tolerant to the soil sterilants simazine and diruon when used at recommended rates, and will thus establish themselves as a mono culture while most other weeds are eliminated by the herbicides."

"They grow mainly in the summertime and provide cover for sprinkler runoff but their root system maintains itself as a network of anchoring fibres to reduce soil erosion during the rainy season...."

"Establishing a spurge cover is a cost-saving procedure. It is accomplished by skipping the spurge plants when spot spraying with weed oil during the summer. As the plants mature, seed is produced that can be easily moved to areas of the orchard that require soil stabilization and runoff control."

As for disadvantages, Pehrson says, "Published articles indicate that members of the spurge family have milky juice or sap that is irritating to the skin of some people. So far, no reports have been found that indicate the low-growing types have caused any discomfort to people working in citrus."

Pehrson concludes his evaluation by stating that the low-growing spurges "offer many advantages at reasonable cost and should be investigated with an eye to convenience and utility."

Actually, some 1600 varieties of the spurges exist. On the basis of six years of practical field application, however, Richardson believes that "only one, the rattlesnake weed, has all the desirable characteristics for hillside orchard ground cover."

From Daybell Nursery

By John

In spite of all our predictions it remains warm. However this isn't the first September that hot weather has prevailed and we should have known better. In fact it would be an unusual September that didn't have a few days of over one hundred degree weather.

There is some advantage to this in that the ground stays warm and allows the seeds to grow that otherwise might not start until spring. This lets you plant for an extra week or two and still grow a fine garden. It also allows you to mow and water the lawn for a few extra days.

This week more and more bulbs are arriving at the nursery. You should be able to buy daffodils, tulips, crocus, dutch iris, hyacinth and a bunch of other things along with the many varieties we now have in stock. Some of these need to be chilled before planting but others can be put right into the ground. We'll be glad to share our knowledge with you on how to do these things.

We're open every day and hope you'll drop by soon to have a look at these fall garden specials.
